A VERY HAPPY OCCASION.

Was the Benner--Hamilton-Waddle Re-union.

THURSDAY AUGUST 11.

At the Country Home of Mrs. Sarah Williams on the Banks of Logan Branch Near Axe Mann--About Fifty Were In Attendance.

SEVERAL OLD PEOPLE PRESENT.

One of the delightful events of the season is the annual reunion of the Benner, Hamilton and Waddle families.

This year it was held at the beautiful country home of Mrs. Sarah Williams, on the left bank of Logan Branch near Axe Mann on Thursday Aug. 11, 1904.

Among the notable persons present were the three oldest surviving members of the Waddle family, Mrs. Hannah Hamilton widow of the late James Hamilton 87 years old; Thomas Waddle of Jersey Shore aged 85 and Mrs. Sarah Williams widow of the late Mark Williams, 80 years of age. These were grand children of General Philip Benner on the mothers side, also the Misses Sallie and Belinda Benner of Bellefonte, grand daughters of General Benner on the father side.

General Philip Benner was a prominent citizen in Centre Co. one hundred years ago, and was among the pioneers in the iron business in this section of the state, his iron works being located on Spring Creek and familiarly known as Rock Forge.

Among the fifty who were present were grand children and great grand children of both the Benner, Hamilton and the Waddle families after a most sumptuous dinner was served out on the lawn, the day was delightfully spent in happy reminiscences, music and social intercourse.

After some pleasing graphophone selections conducted by Mr. Thos. Moore of Philadelphia, husband of the granddaughter of James Hamilton. Rev. John A. Wood of the Methodist church offered an earnest prayer, Mrs. Sarah Williams sang a hymn as a solo, followed by another hymn sung by her aged brother, Thomas Waddle. Thus closed a day long to be remembered by all those who were present.

Among the guests were the following persons.

Mrs. Sarah E. Saterfield.
Mr. and Mrs. Sam'l Williams and daughter.
Mrs. Wm, Dawson, children and grand children.
Mrs. A. V. Hamilton and daughter,
Mrs. John Noll,
Mrs. Jno. McGinley and daughter,
Jas. and Philip sons of Benner Waddle deceased.
Jas. Waddle of Lock Haven.
Miss Mary Williams.
Mardecai Williams.
Jas. Williams and family.
Clyde Smith and wife.
James Harris and wife.
Mrs. Holesworth.
Rev. J. A. Wood and family.
Prof. Jas. Hughes, Sr.
Mrs. Jno. Rote.
Mrs. Scanlon.
Mrs. Isaac Miller.

A FINE WORK OF ART.

Now Adorns the Walls of the Roosevelt Club Room.

Miss Elizabeth Price, of State College, is a young Centre county artist who is rapidly forging to the front in her chosen profession. A specimen of her work was hung on the walls of the Roosevelt club room on last Thursday afternoon and since that time it has been admired by hundreds of people.

It is a life size painting, done in oil, of President Roosevelt and represents our honored chief magistrate in a characteristic attitude, true to life.

Miss Price values her picture at $50 and while we are not posted on such matters we would deem it as reasonable as it must have taken months of careful work to complete it.

The picture has not been purchased by the Roosevelt Club but it is there on exhibition and anyone who cares to see it may call there at any time and inspect it.

Miss Price is to be congratulated on her splendid skill as an artist and we prophesy for her a bright future.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

John Bartger, An Austrian, Arrested on a Serious Charge.

You often read of terrible outrages committed, in other towns far distant from ours but when the crime comes to our own doors, it seems almost indescribable and horrible to think of.

This story of the attempted crime is correct from beginning to end as a reporter of the Republican visited the home where it took place and accompanied the officers when they made the arrest.

Along the road leading to Coleville is the pretty little home of Mr. Thomas Rishel, one of the towns most highly respected citizens. In his family are his good wife, Sallie and daughter, Miss Iva. Mr. Rishel is employed by the Bellefonte Central Railroad Company, as their trusted track foreman, and his work calls him away from home quite early in the morning, sometimes going as far as State College. Their daughter Iva is employed at the Shirt Factory and is away from home also the entire day. Mrs. Rishel is a cripple lady and for the past few years has been in poor health. On Monday afternoon after having completed her days work she laid down on the sofa to rest. About half past three she heard the back kitchen door open, and thinking one of the neighbor ladies, from near the glass works, had come in to visit, she did not bother getting up. About five minutes elapsed when she heard the dining room door open and in stepped a man She screamed and jumped to her feet, but he grabbed her and threw her to the floor, and being strong and heavy, soon overpowered the woman, when Mrs. Rishel yelled for the dog to come and save her. The dog is of a Shepherd species and as soon as he saw his mistress in her agony and distress, he jumped on the curs back and began chewing his neck. The dog was instrumental in pulling the villian away from Mrs. Rishel who managed to crawl to a drawer and secure a butcher knife and with the assistance of the dog she held the man at bay until she called for help over the telephone.

George Jodon having received the word was at the home in five minutes, but the scoundrel had safely made his escape.

At six o'clock Monday evening Mrs. Rishel was seen at her home and she is on the verge of a total collapse, and in her extreme weakness she related the horrible details of this awful attempted crime.

When Mr. Rishel reached home from his work in the evening and when told of what happened in his home his anger was almost uncontrolable and he had a warrant sworn out for the villians arrest. He knew the fellow as he had given him work several times on the Railroad. The villian knew full well that Mr. Rishel was called away from home and that his wife was left alone everyday and so he made the attempted outrage at this time.

POLICE HOT ON HIS TRAIL,

About nine o'clock Monday evening Mr. Rishel, Officers Jodon and Henry Montgomery and a Reporter of the Daily News searched the Italian and other foreign shanties at the Collins and Nittany furnaces, and when at the latter place they were told he boarded with an Austrian named Ambrose Kissnick, so the possee went to this house and without any ceremony all entered.

Every shack that was searched the "Hunkies," "Ikes" or whatever you would want to call them, were all drinking, singing and having a royal good time, and so it was at Kissnicks. About a dozen of roughs were seated around a dirty table, uttering some unmelodious songs, and in the midst, and the loudest of all was the man the officers were looking for. He kicked and resisted being arrested, but you might just as well buck against an engine as against Jodon, for when he gets those lunch hooks fastened to you something has got to give, and in this case it was the Austrian. He was quickly handcuffed and hustled into Bellefonte and taken to Fort Taylor where he will remain until his trial at court.

His name is Mike Bartger and is 36 years old. Has a black mustache and is about 5 feet 4 inches tall. He is an Austrian by birth.

He should be given the fullest extent of the law for his dastardly crime and prove a lesson to others that an attempt of this kind again will be dealt with likewise.

—Irvin Kline, the street sprinkler, says the streets would hold water much better if it were not for the hot-air that comes from the business places of Jas. Harris, the tailor; J. D. Sourbeck and James Wian, the saddler. The hot-air is terrific at noon of each day. Hot-air is all the go up there,

THE DEATH OF COL. WEAVER.

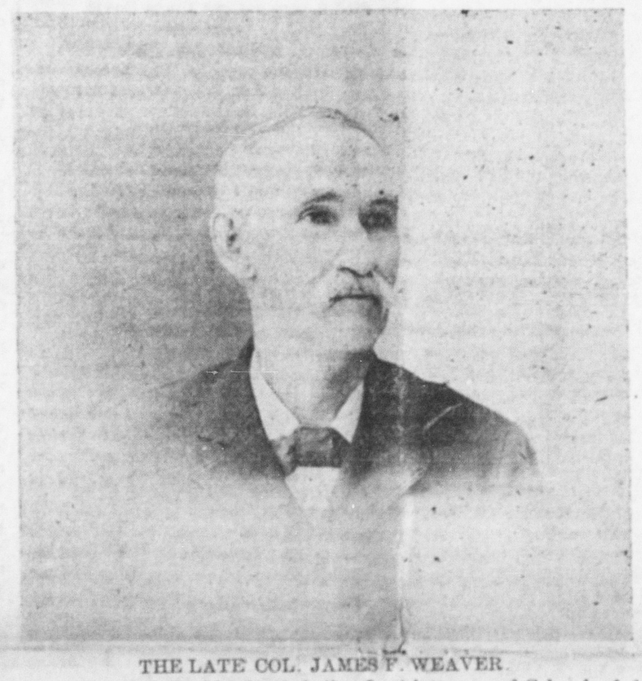
Prominent Granger and Influential Citizen.

DIED LAST SATURDAY

At His Home in Boggs Township—Served in the Legislature and Was County Treasurer—Director of Patrons Insurance Co.

FUNERAL OCCURRED ON TUESDAY.

In the death of Col. James F. Weaver at his home in Boggs township last Saturday morning at 6 o'clock. Centre county has lost one of its best citizens, a prominent granger, a brave soldier, a faithful public official when called upon and an honest, upright, public spirited man.



THE LATE COL. JAMES F. WEAVER.
Prominent Granger, Ex-Member of the Legislature and Colonel of 148th P. V. I.

Col. Weaver's death was due to Bright's disease from which he had been suffering for several years. He had been gradually growing weaker for several weeks past and the end came peacefully, surrounded by his family, whom he dearly loved, and in his cosy home on the banks of the Bald Eagle.

He was a native of Centre county and was born in Spring township November 6, 1830 and is a son of John and Elizabeth Weaver, natives of Dauphin and Centre counties respectively. In the early days his father was engaged in the milling business at Bellefonte and he erected the stone building then known as the Centre county bank and now known as the R. C. Curtin residence.

When Col. Weaver was a young man he learned the carpenter trade but ill health compelled him to give it up. He then entered a printing office in Clarion and on the completion of his apprenticeship worked at the business in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore for about a year after which he returned to Bellefonte. In 1852 he purchased the Centre Democrat, remaining as the editor and proprietor of that paper for two years and a half after which he sold out and engaged in mercantile pursuits at Milesburg until after the breaking out of the civil war.

On August 8, 1862, Mr. Weaver was commissioned a second Lieutenant by Gov. Curtin, with the power to raise a company, which became Co B, 148th P. V. I. In September of the same year he was commissioned Captain, and subsequently promoted to major, lieutenant colonel and colonel of the same regiment. With the army of the Potomac he participated in many of the engagements in which they took part, leading his men on many a southern battlefield. By his gallant service and agreeable manner he won the respect of his fellow officers, and the love and confidence of those under him. At the end of the war he was honorably discharge June 8, 1865, near Alexandria, Va. He received a scalp wound caused by a piece of shell at Poe River, Va., May 8, 1864. For three years after the war he was in the mercantile business at Milesburg and then he purchased his present homestead in Boggs township where he has resided ever since.

On December 23, 1851, Col. Weaver was married to Miss Mary M. Hall, of Milesburg, who survives him with three children, James H., of Boggs township, J. Willis, of Winburn, and Elizabeth at home.

Col. Weaver has taken a prominent and influential part in public affairs, was elected County treasurer in October 1871, for two years, and in the fall of 1876 was elected to represent his county in the State legislature. He also filled many local offices with credit and fidelity. In January 1885 he was appointed by Gov. Pattison as a member of the Commission whose duties were to erect the State Industrial Reformatory at Huntingdon: He served on the Commission until the building was completed and turned over to the state. For the last twenty-five years he was a prominent member of the Patrons of Husbandry of Centre county, a director of the Patrons Fire Insurance Company and the County Grange lecturer. He was a member of Methodist church at Milesburg since 1853 and had filled the positions of trustee, steward and Sunday school superintendent.

FUNERAL OF COL. WEAVER.

Sad and impressive were the services held over all that was mortal of Col. James F. Weaver at his pretty country home on Tuesday morning.

Country folks from all over the county gathered to pay their last loving tribute and to follow him to his last resting place in the Union cemetery at this place. The body reposed in a handsome black cloth covered casket, mounted with silver upon which was a beautiful wreath of flowers, laid there by loving hands.

Col. Weaver had hosts of friends all over Centre county and fully five hundred attended these sad services. The funeral procession was so long that the services were over at the grave before the last carriage had entered the cemetery.

Rev. M. C. Piper spoke in beautiful words of the life and character of deceased, and what a Glorious Resurrection would be his on that Great Day when the Master would come to claim his own.

The casket bearers were General James A. Beaver, William A. Ishler, Daniel Woodring, Captain Henry Montgomery, David F. Fortney, Amos Garbrick, Samuel D. Musser, of Scranton, and John F. Fleming, of Connelsville.

Robbery at Munson.

Early on Sunday Aug. 7 thieves entered the residence of W. E. Peterson, postmaster at Munson, and confiscated a tin box containing $217. Of this amount $180.25 was money order and postal funds, $24.00 money belonging to the store and $12.75 individual funds. One registered letter was also taken. Two gold watches, one belonging to Mrs. Peterson and another to a little girl, as well as several other articles of jewelry, were not taken, which leads many to think the robbers were persons not so far away from Munson.

An entrance was effected to the house through a cellar window. The work was done so quietly that no one knew of the robbery until the family arose at their usual time of getting up. There is as yet no clue to the burglars.

Switzer Gets Reward.

John Switzer, of Coleville, who captured Dominic Constance, the Italian, received his reward of $100 from the County Commissioners on Tuesday. $20 of this reward he paid to James Rowan of Valley View who assisted him at the capture of Constance.

RUSSIAN FLEET MEETS REPULSE

MANY RUSSIANS KILLED

This Victory Secures for the Japs a Complete Mastery of the Sea and Restores Commerce.

LATEST NEWS FROM THE FAR EAST.

TOKIO, Aug. 13.—Admiral Togo has reported as follows:

"On August 10 our combined fleet attacked the enemy's fleet near Gugan Rock. The Russian vessels were emerging from Port Arthur trying to go south. We pursued the enemy to the eastward. Severe fighting lasted from one o'clock Wednesday afternoon until sundown. Toward the close the enemy's fire weakened remarkably. His formation became confused and then his ships scattered. The Russian cruisers Askold and Novik and several torpedo boat destroyers fled to the southward. Other of the enemy.s ships retreated separately toward Port Arthur.

MUCH DAMAGE INFICTED.

We pursued them and it appears that we inflicted considerable damage We found life buoys and other articles belonging to the Russian battleship Czarevitch floating at sea. The Czarevitch probably was sunk. We have received no reports from the torpedo boat destroyers which were engaged in the attack on ships of the enemy. The Russian vessels with the exception of the Askold, the Novik, the Czarevitch and the cruiser Pallada, appeared to have returned to Port Arthur. Our damage was slight. Our fighting power has not been impaired."

JAP CASUALTIES WERE 170.

"Admiral Togo reports that the Russian squadron proceeded southward after the sortie from Port Arthur on Aug. 10 and were attacked by the combined Japanese fleet twenty-five miles southeast of Port Arthur. They were pursued in an easterly direction. Sharp fighting continued from 1 p. m. until sunset. The enemy apparently suffered heavy damage and later his fire slackened greatly while his battle formation was completely deranged. The Askold, the Novik, the Czarevitch, the Pallada and some destroyers fled southward and the rest probably fled to Port Arthur after an attack by our destroyer and torpedo boat flotilla at night. Our fleet suffered no serious damage and the total casualties were about 170."

TOKIO, August 15.—Vice Admiral Kamimura encountered the Russians Vladivostok squadron at dawn Sunday north of Tsu Island in the Strait of Korea and attacked the enemy at once. The battle lasted for five hours and resulted in a complete Japanese victory. The Russian cruiser Rurik was sunk and the cruisers Rossia and Gromobol fled to the northward after having sustained serious damage.

Vice Admiral Kamimura cables the Navy Department that the injuries inflicted upon his vessels were slight.

The fate of the crew of the Rurik is not known.

It is presumed that many of them were killed or drowned. The strength of the fleet under Vice Admiral Kamimura is not known, but it is presumed that he had the Adsuma, Idzumo, Iwate, Aakashibo and other light cruisers.

Tokio is joyous over the news, as it gives Japan mastery of the sea and restores commerce,

REPORT TO JAPANESE LEGATION

WASHINGTON, August 15.—The Japanese legation has received a cablegram from Tokio dated Sunday saying that "Admiral Kamimura reports that our squadron, after five hours severe fighting with the three ships of the Vladivostok squadron on the morning of the 14th in the mouth of Tsushima Island sank the Rurik. The other two ships, which appeared to have suffered heavily, fled northward. Our damages are slight."

Another cablegram from Tokio of the Legation says:

The commander of the Takeshiki naval station says that our fleet reported by wireless telegraphy that the Vladivostok squadron was sighted at 5:10 a. m. on the 14th. The cruiser Takashiho subsequently reported that a naval battle is being ought."

THE ADVICES FROM SHANGHAI.

SHANGHAI, August 11.—The forty-eight hours granted the Russians torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi expired at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. At that hour she had not disarmed. The Taotai of Shanghai has repeated his demand that the vessel leave or disarm.

The wounded men from the Russian cruiser Askold were brought to the Shanghai municipal hospital Thursday.

The hospital ship Mongolia, which left Port Arthur August 10, with women and children on board, has not been spoken.

The steamer Gaelic has sighted the Russian cruiser Novik between Shanghai and Nagasaki proceeding south. The Novik sought refuge at Tsing-chou, but left there at the expiration of twenty-four hours and had not been reported before.

The local authorities are anxious and shipping is disturbed

JAPS CASUALTIES ON AUGUST 10.

TOKIO, August 14.—(3 p. m.)—The following are the casualties sustained by the Japanese in the action of August 10.

On board the battleship Mikasa, Admiral Togo's flagship, there was four officers and 29 men killed, six officers and 29 men severely wounded, and four officers and 29 men slightly wounded, while the armored cruiser Yakumo had one officer and 11 men killed and 10 wounded; on board the armored cruiser Nisshin 7 officers and 9 men were killed and 2 officers and 15 men were wounded. Ten men were wounded on the armored cruiser Kasuga.

The torpedo boat destroyer Asagiri had two men killed. On board torpedo boat No. 38 one man was killed and eight others wounded.

JAPS ARMY IS STRENGTHING

St Petersburg, Aug. 15.—A dispatch from Mukden states that the Japanese Port Arthur army has been largely reinforced and has taken up position in two large bodies one on the heights between Lungwungtai, and Pigeon Bay, and the other on the hills near Louisa battery. Guns have also been placed on the heights east of the Wolf Hills.

PRINCE HIROYASHUKWACHO WOUNDED.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—Imperial Prince Hiroyashukwacho was slightly wounded aboard the battleship Mikasa in last Wednesday's engagement.

ALEXIFF GOES TO VLADIVOSTOK

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—A dispatch from Harbin says that Viceroy Alexieff has passed through that place on his way to Vladivostok.

The Boy and the Cigarette.

"Train up a child in the way you should have gone yourself," said Mr. Spurgeon, in one of his sermons lately. It is good advice. Fond parents are apt enough to spare their children the sufferings they endured themselves, but when it comes to the faults they committed, they often say: "I did just so myself; how can I blame Tom for doing it?" It is not necessary to blame him. The point is to guide and instruct him in such a way that he will avoid his father's errors. Train him up, not in the way you went yourself, but in the way you should have gone.

Every parent who has boys growing up must meet, sooner or later, the great question of smoking. Stern and uncompromising repression of the cigar and cigarette will not usually solve the problem, but only postpone it. There are probably half a million boys smoking today in the United States who have been forbidden to do so by parents or teachers; but they smoke, and the practice is bad, particularly in boys under eighteen. The parents who succeed in bestowing upon their sons the priceless boon of freedom from lowering habits do so by winning their confidence enlightening their minds and developing in them the principle of obedience. Some exercise of authority may be necessary, but that authority needs to be supplemented by knowledge and conscience. Let a boy see clearly why he should not smoke, and the parent has half won the victory.

Apple and Pear Pest.

Specimens of the apple and pear tree psylia have been received by the State Economic Zoologist. This pest was imported from Europe several years ago and has done considerable destruction to the trees in this country but is little known in this state. It is the size of a fly, of gray color and is usually found on the under side of the leaves. It is a suctorial insect and does not chew, so paris green and other poisons have no effect upon it. Strong soap suds, kerosene emulsion and the like are the remedies.

CONTINUED.

"Well?" I asked.

"Mr. Moore deals with Simpkins, just two blocks away from his house, and only a week ago he bought some candles there."

"You had better patronize Simpkins yourself for a little while," I suggested, and by the arch glance with which my words were received I perceived that my meaning was fully understood.

Experiencing from this moment an increased confidence, not only in the powers of my little friend, but in the line of investigation thus happily established, I cast about for means of settling the one great question which was a necessary preliminary to all future action—whether the marks detected by me in the dust of the mantel in the southwest chamber had been made by the hand of him who had lately felt the need of candles, albeit his house appeared to be fully lighted by gas?

The point aimed at was this: To obtain without Mr. Moore's knowledge an accurate impression of his finger tips.

The task presented difficulties, but these served only to increase my ardor.

Confiding to the lieutenant of the precinct my great interest in the mysterious house with whose suggestive interior I had made myself acquainted under such tragic circumstances, I asked him as a personal favor to obtain for me an opportunity of spending another night there. He was evidently surprised by the request, and being, as I have intimated, favorably disposed to me, he exerted himself to such good effect that I was formally detailed to assist in keeping watch over the premises that very night.

As I prepared to enter the old house at nightfall I allowed myself one short glance across the way to see if my approach had been observed by the man whose secret, if secret he had, I was laying plans to surprise. I was met by a sight I had not expected. Pausing on the pavement in front of me stood a handsome, elderly gentleman whose appearance was so fashionable and thoroughly up to date that I should have failed to recognize him if my glance had not taken in at the same instant the figure of Rudge crouching obstinately on the edge of the curb, where he had evidently posted himself in distinct refusal to come any farther. In vain his master, for the well dressed man before me was no less a personage than the whilom butt of all the boys between the capitol and the treasury building, signaled and commanded him to cross to his side. Nothing could induce the mastiff to budge from that quarter of the street where he felt himself safe.

Mr. Moore, glorying in the prospect of unlimited wealth, presented a startling contrast in more ways than one to the poverty stricken old man whose curious garb and lonely habits had made him an object of ridicule to half the town. I own that I was half amused and half awed by the condescending bow with which he greeted my offhand nod and the affable way in which he remarked:

"You are making use of your prerogatives as a member of the police, I see."

The words came as easily from his lips as if his practice in affability had been of the very longest.

"I wonder how the old place enjoys its present distinction," he went on, running his eye over the dilapidated walls under which we stood, with very evident pride in their vast proportions and the air of gloomy grandeur which signalized them. "If it partakes in the slightest degree of the feelings of its owner, I can vouch for its impatience at the free use which is made of its time worn rooms and halls. Are these intrusions necessary? Now that Mrs. Jeffrey's body has been removed, do you feel that the scene of her demise need hold the attention of the police any longer?"

"That is a question to put to the superintendent and not to me," was my deprecatory reply. "The major has issued no orders for the watch to be taken off, so we men have no choice. I am sorry if it offends you. Doubtless a few days will end the matter, and the keys will be given into your hand. I suppose you are anxious to move in?"

He cast a glance behind him at his dog, gave a whistle, which passed unheeded, and replied, with dignity, if but little heart:

"When a man has passed his seventh decade he is not apt to be so patient with delay as when he has a prospect of many years before him. I am anxious to enter my own house—yes. I have much to do there."

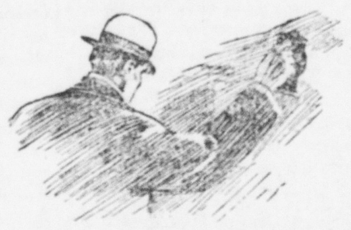
I remounted the steps, carelessly remarking:

"I'll see you again after taking a turn through the house. If I discover anything, ghost marks or human marks which might be of interest to you, I'll let you know."

It was necessary for the success of my plan that some time should elapse before I reapproached Mr. Moore. I therefore kept my word to him and satisfied my own curiosity by taking a fresh tour through the house. Naturally, in doing this, I visited the library. Here all was dark. The faint twilight still illuminating the street failed to penetrate here. I was obliged to light my lantern.

My first glance was toward the fireplace. Venturesome hands had been there. Not only had the fender been drawn out and the grate set aside, but the huge settle had been wrenched free from the mantel and dragged into the center of the room. Rather pleased at this change, for with all my apparent bravado I did not enjoy too close a proximity to the cruel hearthstone, I stopped to give this settle a thorough investigation. The result was disappointing. To all appearance—and I did not spare it the experiment of many a thump and knock—it was a perfectly innocuous piece of furniture, clumsy of build, but solid and absolutely devoid of anything that could explain the tragedies which had occurred so near it. I even sat down on its musty old cushion and shut my eyes, but was unrewarded by alarming visions or disturbance of any sort. Nor did the floor where it had stood yield any better results to the inquiring eye.

Inspecting the library fireplace



Nothing was to be seen there but the marks left by the removal of its base from the blackened boards.

Disgusted with myself if not with this object of my present disappointment, I left that portion of the room in which it stood and crossed to where I had found the little table on the night of Mrs. Jeffrey's death. It was no longer there. It had been set back against the wall, where it properly belonged, and the candelabrum removed. Nor was the kitchen chair any longer to be seen near the bookshelves. This fact, small as it was, caused me an instant of chagrin. I had intended to look again at the book which I had examined with such unsatisfactory results the time before. A glance showed me that this book had been pushed back level with the others. But I remembered its title, and had the means of reaching it been at hand I should certainly have stolen another peep at it.

Upstairs I found the same signs of police interference. The shutter had been fastened in the southwest room and the bouquet and wrap taken away from the bed. The handkerchief also was missing from the mantel where I had left it, and when I opened the closet door it was to find the floor bare and the second candelabrum and candle removed.

"All gone," thought I—"each and every clew."

But I was mistaken. In another moment I came upon the minute filings I had before observed scattered over a small stand. Concluding from this that they had been passed over by Durbin and his associates as valueless, I swept them together with the dust in which they lay, into an old envelope I happily found in my pocket. Then I crossed to the mantel and made a close inspection of its now empty shelf. The scratches which I had made there were visible enough, but the impressions for which they stood had vanished in the handling which everything in the house had undergone. Regarding with great thankfulness the result of my own foresight, I made haste to leave the room. I then proceeded to take my first steps in the ticklish experiment by which I hoped to determine whether Uncle David had had any share in the fatal business which had rendered the two rooms I had just visited so memorable.

First satisfying myself by a peep through the front drawing room window that he was positively at watch behind the vines, I went directly to the kitchen, procured a chair and carried it into the library, where I put it to a use that to an onlooker's eye would have appeared very peculiar. Planting it squarely on the hearthstone—not without some secret perturbation as to what the results might be to myself—I mounted it and took down the engraving which I have already described as hanging over this mantelpiece.

Setting it on end against one of the jambs of the fireplace, I mounted the chair once more and carefully sifted over the high shelf the contents of a little package which I had brought with me for this purpose.

Then, leaving the chair where it was, I betook myself out of the front door, ostentatiously stopping to lock it and to put the key in my pocket.

Crossing immediately to Mr. Moore's side of the street, I encountered him, as I had expected to do, at his own gateway.

"Well, what now?" he inquired, with the same exaggerated courtesy I had noticed in him on a previous occasion. "You have the air of a man bringing news. Has anything fresh happened in the old house?"

I assumed a frankness which seemed to impose on him.

"Do you know," I sententiously informed him, "I have a wonderful interest in that old hearthstone, or, rather, in the seemingly innocent engraving hanging over it of Benjamin Franklin at the court of France. I tell you frankly that I had no idea of what would be found behind the picture."

I saw by his quick look that I had stirred up a hornets' nest. This was just what I had calculated to do.

"Behind it!" he repeated. "There is nothing behind it."

I laughed, shrugged my shoulders and backed slowly toward the door.

"Of course you should know," I retorted, with some condescension. Then as if struck by a sudden remembrance: "Oh, by the way, have you been told that there is a window on that floor which does not stay fastened? I speak of it that you may have it repaired as soon as the police vacate. It's the last one in the hall leading to the negro quarters. If you shake it hard enough, the catch falls back, and any one can raise it even from the outside."

"I will see to it," he replied, dropping his eyes, possibly to hide their curious twinkle. "But what do you mean about finding something in the wall behind that old picture? I've never heard"—

But, though he spoke quickly and shouted the last words after me at the top of his voice, I was by this time too far away to respond save by a dubious smile and a semipatronizing wave of the hand. Not until I was nearly out of earshot did I venture to shout back the following words:

"I'll be back in an hour. If anything happens, if the boys annoy you or any one attempts to enter the old house, telephone to the station or summon the officer at the corner. I don't believe any harm will come from leaving the place to itself for awhile." Then I walked around the block.

When I arrived in front again it was quite dark. So was the house, but there was light in the library. I felt assured that I should find Uncle David there, and I did. When after a noiseless entrance and a careful advance through the hall I threw open the door beyond the gilded pillars it was to see the tall figure of this old man mounted upon the chair I had left there peering up at the nail from which I had so lately lifted the picture. He started as I presented myself and almost fell from the chair. But the careless laugh I uttered assured him of the little importance I placed upon this evidence of his daring and unappeasable curiosity, and he confronted me with an enviable air of dignity, whereupon I managed to say:

"Really, Mr. Moore, I'm glad to see you here. It is quite natural for you to wish to learn by any means in your power what that picture concealed. I came back because I suddenly remembered that I had forgotten to rehang it."

Involuntarily he glanced again at the wall overhead, which was as bare as his hand save for the nail he had already examined.

"It has concealed nothing," he retorted. "You can see yourself that the wall is bare and that it rings as sound as any chimney piece ever made." Here he struck it heavily with his fist. "What did you imagine that you had found?"

I smiled, shrugged my shoulders in tantalizing repetition of my former action upon a like occasion and then answered brusquely:

"I did not come back to betray police secrets, but to restore this picture to its place. Or perhaps you prefer to have it down rather than up? It isn't much of an ornament."

He scrutinized me darkly from over his shoulder, a wary gleam showing itself in his shrewd old eyes, and the idea crossed me that the moment might possess more significance than appeared. But I did not step backward nor give evidence in any way that I had even thought of danger. I simply laid my hand on the picture and looked up at him for orders.

He promptly signified that he wished it hung, adding as I hesitated these words: "The pictures in this house are supposed to stay on the walls where they belong. There is a traditional superstition against removing them."

I immediately lifted the print from the floor. No doubt he had me at a disadvantage, if evil was in his heart, and my position on the hearth was as dangerous as previous events had proved it to be. But it would not do to show the white feather at a moment when his fate, if not my own, hung in the balance; so, motioning him to step down, I put foot on the chair and raised the picture aloft to hang it. As I did so he moved over to the huge settle of his ancestors and, crossing his arms over its back, surveyed me with a smile I rather imagined than saw.

Suddenly, as I strained to put the cord over the nail, he called out:

"Look out! You'll fall!"

If he had intended to give me a start in payment for my previous rebuff he did not succeed, for my nerves had grown steady and my arm firm at the glimpse I had caught of the shelf below me. The fine brown powder I had scattered there had been displaced in five distinct spots, and not by my fingers. I had preferred to risk the loss of my balance rather than rest my hand on the shelf, but he had taken no such precaution. The clew I so anxiously desired and for which I had so recklessly worked was obtained.

But when, half an hour later, I found an opportunity of measuring these marks and comparing them with those upstairs I did not enjoy the full triumph I had promised myself, for the two impressions utterly failed to coincide, thus proving that whoever the person was who had been in this house with Mrs. Jeffrey on the evening she died it was not her Uncle David.

CHAPTER VIII.

LET me repeat. The person who had left the marks of his presence in the upper chamber of the Moore house was not the man popularly known as Uncle David. Who, then, had it been? But one name suggested itself to me—Mr. Jeffrey.

It was not so easy for me to reach this man as it had been for me to reach his singular and unimaginative uncle. In the first place, his door had been closed to every one since his wife's death. Neither friends nor strangers could gain admittance there unless they came vested with authority from the coroner. And this, even if I could manage to obtain it, would not answer in my case. What I had to say and do would better follow a chance encounter. But no chance encounter with this gentleman seemed likely to fall to my lot, and finally I swallowed my pride and asked another favor of the lieutenant. Would he see that I was given an opportunity for carrying some message or of doing some errand which would lead to my having an interview with Mr. Jeffrey? If he would I stood ready to promise that my curiosity should stop at this point and that I would cease to make a nuisance of myself.

I think he suspected me by this time, but he made no remark, and in a day or so I was summoned to carry a note to the house in K street.

Mrs. Jeffrey's funeral had taken place the day before, and the house looked deserted. But my summons speedily brought to the door a neat looking but very nervous maid, whose eyes took on an unmistakable expression of resistance when I announced my errand and asked to see Mr. Jeffrey. The expression would not have struck me as peculiar if she had raised any objection to the interview I had solicited. But she did not. Her fear and antipathy consequently sprang from some other source than her interest in the man most threatened by my visit. Was it, could it be, on her own account? Recalling what I had heard whispered about the station concerning a maid of the Jeffreys who always seemed on the point of saying something which never really left her lips, I stopped her as she was about to slip upstairs and quietly asked:

Loretta, the Jeffreys' maid

"Are you Loretta?"

The way she turned, the way she looked at me, as she gave me a short affirmative and then quickly proceeded on her way, convinced me that my colleagues were right as to her being a woman who had some cause for dreading police interference. I instantly made up my mind that here was a mine to be worked and that I knew just the demure little soul best equipped to act the part of miner.

In a moment she came back, and I had a chance to note again her pretty but expressionless features, among which the restless eyes alone bespoke character or decision.

"Mr. Jeffrey is in the back room upstairs," she announced. "He says for you to come up."

"Is it the room Mrs. Jeffrey used to occupy?" I asked, with open curiosity, as I passed her.

An involuntary shudder proved that she was not without feeling. So did the quick disclaimer:

"No, no! Those rooms are closed. He occupies the one Miss Tuttle had before she went away."

"Oh, then, Miss Tuttle is gone?"

the thing that same night which I have not thought of sufficient importance to mention to any one else, but which it may interest you to hear about."

Securing an imprint of Jeffrey's hand

Here I took from a book I held a piece of blotting paper. It was white on one side and blue on the other. The white side I had thickly chalked, though this was not apparent. Laying down this piece of blotting paper, chalked side up, on the end of a large table near which we were standing, I took out an envelope from my pocket and, shaking it gently to and fro, remarked:

"In an upper room of the Moore house—you remember the southwest chamber, sir?"

Ah, didn't he! There was no misdoubting the quick emotion—the shrinking and the alarm with which he heard this room mentioned.

"It was in that room that I found these."

Tipping up the envelope, I scattered over the face of the blotter a few of the glistening particles I had collected from the place mentioned.

He bent over them, astonished; then, as was natural, brushed them together in a heap with the tips of his fingers and leaned to look again just as I breathed a heavy sigh which scattered them far and wide.

Instinctively he withdrew his hand, whereupon I embraced the opportunity of turning the blotter over, uttering meanwhile the most profuse apologies. Then, as if anxious not to repeat my misadventure, I let the blotter lie where it was, and, pouring out the few remaining particles into my palm, I held them toward the light in such a way that he was compelled to lean across the table in order to see them. Naturally, for I had planned the dis-

Loretta disdained to answer. She had already said enough to cause her to bite her lip as she disappeared down the basement stair. Decidedly the boys were right. An uneasy feeling followed any conversation with this girl. Yet, while there was slyness in her manner, there was a certain frank honesty visible in it, too, which caused me to think that if she could ever be made to speak her evidence could be relied on.

Mr. Jeffrey was sitting with his back to the door when I entered, but turned as I spoke his name and held out his hand for the note I carried. He appeared to shrink from observation and shifted uneasily as long as I stood in front of him, though he said nothing and did not lift his eyes from the letter he was perusing till he heard me step back to the door I had purposely left open and softly closed it. Then he glanced up with a keen if not an alarmed look, which seemed an exaggerated one for the occasion—that is, if he had no secret to keep.

"Do you suffer so from drafts?" he asked, rising in a way which in itself was a dismissal.

I smiled an amused denial, then, with the simple directness I thought most likely to win me his confidence, entered straight upon my business in these plain words:

"Pardon me, Mr. Jeffrey, I have something to say which is not exactly fitted for the ears of servants." Then as he pushed his chair suddenly back I added reassuringly: "It is not a police matter, sir, but an entirely personal one. It may strike you as important, and it may not. Mr. Jeffrey, I was the man who made the unhappy discovery in the Moore mansion which has plunged this house into mourning."

This announcement startled him and produced a visible change in his manner. His eyes flew first to one door and then to another, as if it were he who feared intrusion now.

"I beg your pardon for speaking on so painful a topic," I went on as soon as I saw he was ready to listen to me. "My excuse is that I came upon a little which his finger tips, white with the chalk he had unconsciously handled, touched the blue surface of the blotter now lying uppermost and left their marks there.

I could have shouted in my elation at the success of this risky maneuver, but managed to suppress my emotion and to stand quite still while he took a good look at the filings. They seemed to have great and unusual interest for him, and it was with no ordinary emotion that he finally asked:

"What do you make out of these, and why do you bring them here?"

My answer was written under his hand, but this it was far from my policy to impart. So, putting on my friendliest air, I returned, with suitable respect:

"I don't know what to make of them. They look like gold, but that is for you

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

A 20th Century CINDERELLA.

Jack Berenson caught sight of her as he was going to the office after lunch. He frequently caught sight of her but this was the extent of their acquaintance He had groaned more than once to think conventionality forbade a more extended one. She was not the kind of a girl with whom one might scrape up a bowing recognition, to be later elaborated into an interchange of commonplaces that might culminate in permission to call. Indeed, if she had been, it is safe to conclude Berenson would not have troubled his head about her, for he had a social position to maintain, a good deal of personal pride and more than the average sense of exclusiveness.

"Hallo!" he said, suddenly, and stopped short.

The girl ahead paused. She was evidently in some predicament, for she stopped as though to extricate herself or to pick up an article dropped. Almost at the same instant, however, a tremendous dray, piled with boxes, bore down upon her, and at the shout of the driver, who was striving to rein in his huge Percherons, she sprang toward safety and reached the sidewalk.

Berenson let the dray pass. Looking down directly on the spot where the girl had hesitated, he saw that which had arrested her, and bending quickly, he pulled out of the thick, black, sticky mud an absurdly small rubber, with its wrinkles holding the arch of a high little instep.

"Well!" he ejaculated, "here's luck;"

He felt ridiculously elated. So pleased did he look, in fact, that a friend jostling him as he reached the opposite sidewalk remarked his satisfaction.

"Wheat gone up, Berenson?"

"No—rubber!" laughed Berenson. And his friend walked off, wondering what there was in fishing footwear out of the mire to make a fellow look so idiotically pleased.

"It was mighty muddy, too!" he commented disgustedly.

This accusation could not be made against it an hour later, cleansed and polished to the highest possible degree by the man who kept the shoe-stand in the office building where Berenson had a suite. He took his prize upstairs, and deposited it, wrapped in tissue paper, on the top of his desk.

Then he sauntered to the window to look over at the skyscrapper across the way, where at a certain window, in a certain tier, he had often seen a certain head. It was a shapely head, ringleted as close as a baby's with sunny brown curls. Indeed, so frequently of late had he gone to his own casement to discover if that particular bonnie head and rose-leaf face were within range of his vision that his business began to suffer from such erratic absences.

Not that Jack Berenson was bothering himself about business. During those minutes he stood, absorbed in day dreams staring apparently at the uninteresting wall of an uninteresting building, he was thinking for the most part how strange it was that he, who had come gayly up the road of life, heart-whole and fancy free, until he had reached his thirtieth mile-stone, should all at once be beset by the most chimerical hopes, the most futile desires, the most glorious of chaotic imaginings.

It was lunacy, he told himself—stark, staring lunacy—that he should go on his way with a bounding heart and a feeling of the most senseless exhilaration, just because he had passed a girlish figure on the sidewalk, met the indifferent glance of violet, black-lashed eyes, looking forth from beneath a white brow, or caught the faint, elusive perfume of her demure garments. And the worst of it was that he could not bring himself to be indignant with himself for being such a fool!

"You like to be a fool!" he told himself angrily. "You're hugging your folly! And much good it will do you! You've not got enough sense, Jack Berenson, to 'last a crazy man till breakfast time!'

With which final shot he was apt to break away from his vigil, return sternly to his desk and plunge into work until—until he began to wonder if she might have returned to her chair in the window, or by any chance be gone out. Though whether out or in, there had seemed slight chance of making her acquaintance before Fate, in the guise of a treacherous street crossing, had placed a belonging of hers in his possession.

But when he had sallied forth with his prize his courage almost failed him. And when the elevator man let him off at the eighth floor, as bidden, it was an insane desire to make his immediate escape by way of the stair case that over whelmed him But he pulled together and went toward the suite of doctor's offices which he knew occupied that particular angle of the big building. Some of the physicians whose names were inscribed on the tablet in the corridor were friends of his.

"Hope I don't run into Norton, or Schriener or MacIntyre," he said. "Hope I don't.

But he did—all three of them. They and a few of their professional associates had met in the reception room previous to attending a medical convention in a body. It seemed to poor Berenson, standing helplessly in the doorway with his package in his hand, that the place was packed with eyes—curious, inquisitive, mocking eyes!

But a few voices called out pleasantly enough, "Hello—how d'ye do, Berenson?" And MacIntyre came forward with a smile that made his ugly countenance quite charming.

"Your—the young lady—" stammered Jack. He held out the package much as though it were a letter of introduction. "She lost this, and—"

"Oh, I see!" The doctor turned hastily. "Miss Meredith!" he called.

A girl—the girl—came from the adjoining room. She looked lovelier than ever without her hat and coat. Her soft, green gown fitted her as its sheath fits a flower. And the pretty, bewildered look in her eyes made them look more than ever like violet stars.

Berenson knew then how a man felt who performs a deed of daring in the cannon's mouth.

"I was behind you this noon," he began, "and when you lost this"—

"Oh, thank you!" she interrupted comprehending at once, and taking the offered bundle. "You were very kind to bring it to me!"

"Vera," MacIntyre said, "let me introduce to you Mr. Berenson. You have often heard Alice mention him, I am sure. Jack—this is Miss Meredith, my wife's sister!" And then as they bowed he went on by way of explanation. "Vera has been looking after callers at the office here during the last six months. She would work—you know what girls are!"

Jack didn't know, but he mentally decided to remain ignorant no longer. He would remedy his deficiencies in this respect as soon as possible, at least as far as this one bewitching maiden was concerned. And he vowed that he had never before guessed what a thoroughly delightful chap MacIntyre was until he heard the latter saying before he went off with his friends:

"Oh, I say, Berenson! Come to dinner to-morrow night—quite informal, you know. Six o'clock. Alice will be mighty glad to see you."

Jack looked doubtfully into the violet eyes.

There was a smile in them, though the lips were sweetly serious.

"I'll come?" promised Jack fervently. He wrung his friend's hand vigorously in the ardor of his friendship. "Lord, yes, I'll come!"

And he said to himself as he strode back to the office with his head in a whirl that it might not be quite so romantic to find a rubber in Chicago mud as a slipper on a ballroom floor, but that it has its—possibilities! It would serve!—Kate M. Cleary, in San Francisco Call.

Robbery at Millheim.

Robbers gained entrance to the clothing and jewelry store of J. D. Nyman, Millheim, Monday night August 8, and made a wholesale haul on jewelry, clothing, boots, shoe, hats and other gent's furnishings, the quantity and value of which cannot be accurately estimated by Mr. Nyman, but is supposed to reach at least several hundred dollars.

It is believed that the robbers were ocal talent, who did not have the forethought to investigate the cash drawer, which was easy of access, and contained considerable money. This latter condition was due to the fact that the proprietor of the store was absent, and the clerks failed to empty the till before closing the store for the night. Suspicion rests on one or more persons, but not enough to warrant immediate arrest, but there is hope of securing additional evidence, when arrests will be made.

The Nyman store is located in the Snook building, to the east of the Musser House, and is a brick structure. Entrance was gained from the rear, and accomplished by removing sufficient bricks to admit the lawless character, who then unlocked the rear door. The second door was opened by boring holes through the panels and removing the hook.

The robbery evidently was committed about two o'clock in the morning, because at that hour the borough high constable had occasion to pass the store building in looking after stray cattle.

JUDGE PARKER NOTIFIED

Interesting Ceremonies at Rosemont He Ignored the Financial Question.

ESOPUS, N. Y., August 11.—Judge Alton B. Parker Wednesday received formal notification of his nomination for the Presidency of the United States as the candidate of the Democratic party, and in accepting gave public expression for the first time of his views on the issues of the campaign.

The notification was brought to him by Representative Champ Clark, of Missouri, as chairman of the committee representing ever state and territory in the Union. Mr. Clark in a brief speech informed the candidate of his nomination, and presented to him a formal communication signed by the committee.

Standing bareheaded, during a brief lull in the rain storm which had lasted since soon after daylight, Judge Parker accepted the nomination and set forth his views in a speech that evoked frequent and hearty applause. He spoke for a little more than half an hour.

The ceremony was held on the lawn at Rosemount, under the trees at the north of the house, and was attended by upwards of six hundred people, the larger number of whom came from New York city with the notification committee on the steamer Sagamore. The company included many Democrats of national prominence, as well as a large and representative delegation from Tammany Hall.

RAIN KEPT 'EM INDOORS.

There would have been a gala day gathering from Kingston and vicinity, where perhaps the Judge is best known, but the rain had been so heavy and continuous that few local people ventured forth.

It was at first decided to hold the ceremonies on the Sagamore owing to the storm but the protest of those who wanted Judge Parker notified at his own house was so vigorous that at the last moment the little platform erected on the Parker lawn was hastily decorated with flags and the ceremonies were held there according to the former plan.

During most of the time occupied by Champ Clark's speech the rain was falling in a steady drizzle but it stopped entirely just as Judge Parker began his address and held off until he finished.

Not a breath of air stirred and in the stillness every word could be heard distinctly to the farthest borders of the crowd. His enunciation was distinct and his delivery exceedingly deliberate.

The speech was heard with closest attention and applause frequently punctuated it. The candidate's audience awoke to a high pitch of enthusiasm when he spoke of so-called militarism and imperialism.

NOT FOR A SECOND TERM.

His pledge not to accept a second term if he was elected aroused instant interest, which increased to marked enthusiasm when the speaker went on to explain his position. Then the crowd seemed to yield to the force of his reasoning and at the end of a particularly telling period toward the close of the speech, it gave the candidate the greatest demonstration of the afternoon. It looked as though every man, woman and child in the throng surrounding the platform had a small American flag and as they cheered the waving flags almost concealed the occupants of the stand. The speaker waited for the applause to subside and then made his few concluding remarks, finishing his address at six minutes before three. He began his address at 2:18 p. m.

THEN THE BAND PLAYED.

As Judge Parker spoke his closing words the band struck up the "Star Spangled Banner," and from the deck of the yacht Sapphire, in the river below, a number of bombs were fired in salute These bursting in the air released para chutes from which were suspended the national colors. Later there were whistles salutes from the steamer Sagamore, John Pierce's yacht Sapphire and August Belmont's yacht. The Scout, which brought former Senator David B. Hill from Hyde Park. After the ceremony all crowded up eagerly to shake the candidate's hand and to congratulate him upon his speech.

The reception was continued on the veranda until after four o'clock, when the company broke up and the visitors returned to their boats and trains.

CHEFOO, August 12.—The Russians protected cruisers Askold and Novik and one torpedo boat destroyer entered the Kiauchau bay last night (Thursday) and exchanged salutes with German vessels.

ST. PETERSBURG, August 13.—Public anxiety regarding the fate of the Port Arthur squadron, which has reached the highest pitch, remained unrelieved when the people of St. Petersburg retired Thursday night.

The reports from Tokio and Chefoo of the sea fight which followed the departure of the squadron are so conflicting and inconclusive that a strong hope exists that the Russians ships succeeded in breaking through the Japanese fleet. Indeed, it was rumored late Thursday night that the admiralty has received information that the squadron had passed beyond the Shantung promonitory (which would bring the squadron at least 150 miles to the southeast of Port Arthur and into the Yellow Sea.)

Although unable to confirm this rumor, the Associated Press learns that the family of Lieutenant Smyrnoff, an officer of the battleship Czarevitch. Thursday evening received a telegram from him dated at Tsingshau Thursday. The message contained only two words, "Alive, embraces."

Tsingchau is 160 miles southwest of Chefoo, in the province of Shantung and is at the entrance of Kiauchau bay. The receipt of this telegram might be construed as partial confirmation of the rumor that the squadron had reached the open sea beyond Shantung. In no other way can Lieutenant Smirnoff's family explained the message from Tsingchau.

It is hardly believed that the squadron itself put into Kiauchau, although some time ago it was reported that it might take refuge in this port. It is regarded as more likely that one of the torpedo boat destroyers was sent there with official dispatches and filed Lieutenant Smirnoff's telegram.

The news of the dismantling of the torpedo boat Ryeshiteini at Chefoo has not caused surprise. It is understood that she was deliberately sacrificed so that Vice Admiral Shrydloff might be apprised of the departure of the Russian vessels from Port Arthur in order that he might start out with the Vladivosto squadron for the purpose of meeting them.

It is denied at the admiralty that the squadron left Port Arthur because the situation of the fortress was desperate. The admiralty authorities say it is more than likely that with the Japanese close up to the perimeter of the fortress, the warships were unable to render further effective aid and that their safety was endangered by the plunging shells dropping from the Wolf Hills.

Your Summer Outing.

A duty all people owe themselves that they may live long and prosper is to take a certain amount of recreation. Brain-workers especially owe this to themselves. Their work is laborious and monotonous, and they should seek some means to have a change for a week or two at least, in some manner which is entirely different to what they see around them. The least expensive and most enjoyable we can recommend is a water trip.

The accommodations are first-class in every way and very reasonable.

A WONDERFUL PEOPLE.

The Japanese are truly a wonderful people, only little more than half a century ago, they were a hermit nation as much closed to the influence and civilization of the western world, as Tibet is today. In this comparatively short time in the life of a nation, they have become one of the most cultured and progressive people on the earth. They are taking a front rank in the arts of war and pace, and the older nations will have to wake up if they want to keep peace with "those little barbarians." Russia is learning this lesson today, she has boasted of her superior enlightenment, dispising the little Jap as not worthy consideration as a civilized power.

The absolute confidence of the Japanese in their ultimate success however, is hardly less remarkable than their machine-like precision. They are not satisfied with predicting triumph; they prepare for it. While the army sweeps forward with relentless force, the department of reconstruction is as busily engaged. Close behind the advancing columns move the administrators, and almost before the smoke of the battle has faded away the rehabilitation of commerce and the arts of peace has commenced. The opening of Niuchwang to the trade of the world two days after the Japanese occupation was not due to sudden impulse or peculiar celerity of action, but to elaborate preparation. Now a more picturesque instance of forehandedness is brought to light. Even while the fortresses of Port Arthur remain untaken, and the surrounding country roars with the thunder of contending guns, officials in Tokio have made ready for the inevitable result. It is announced that as soon as the city falls the running of regular trains between Port Arthur Niuchwang will be resumed. Schedules have been prepared, and operating force has been selected, and tickets have actually been printed. Is there any wonder that Russian mediaevalism falls back before the onslaught of such a people?

DEMOCRATIC PARTY NOT REGENERATED.

The Democratic party has been regenerated says Thomas Taggart, of Indiana, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Mr. Taggart has enlarged upon the old scriptural promise that Sodom should be spared if ten righteous men should be found in the city. The Democratic manager has found one righteous man in the party who after his nomination for President declared that he would, if elected, obey the law and respect the gold standard which has been established by law. This is small promise for the regeneration of the Democratic party, ten times less than that which was held out to the old city of Sodom when the angel appeared to Abraham and promised to spare the wicked city if but ten righteous men could be found therein.

Judge Parker may be an honest gold standard man, and he may have been only following the motto of David B. Hill—"I am a Democrat"—when he supported William J. Bryan on a free silver platform in 1896 and 1900, but Mr. Parker is not the Democratic party. He is certainly not the Democratic party in Congress. There the Democrats are still loyal to their old platform.

Judge Parker's declaration in favor of respecting the gold standard law did not change the attitude of the Democratic Convention which nominated him. The Committee on Resolutions discussed the gold plank submitted by Judge Parker's friend, David B. Hill, and the contest in the Committee continued for fifty hours. It was there defeated by a vote of 14 to 33. Only fifteen of the fifty members of that committee voted for Judge Parker's gold plank. The other 35 voted to strike it out and give no promise regarding the money question in the future. More than two-thirds of the representatives of the States and Territories refused to be regenerated on this question. They remained loyal to the Bryan heresies of the last eight years.

The Democratic platform is silent on this question. Judge Parker's pledge to observe the law binds none but himself. The Democratic party stands just where it has stood since 1896. The free silver plank has not been repudiated. It is still a part of the Democratic Bible. A Democratic majority in Congress would follow the old doctrine of the party. Mr. Taggart will have to find at least ten righteous men in this modern political Sodom before he can appeal to the scriptural promise of regeneration for his party.

A MAN OF ACTION.

The only serious objection ever urged against President Roosevelt is his age. When all the criticisms have been sifted, this alone remains, that he is too young, hot-headed and impetuous to be the Chief Magistrate of a great nation like ours.

It seems to be admitted that he is the youngest man who has ever attained to the Presidency; but it is a man's mental equipment, not his age, that qualifies him for important public service. We must judge President Roosevelt's fitness, not by his years, but by his acts.

President Roosevelt has told us that he believes in the strenuous life, and his deeds do not belie his words. He is a man of action, and that is what has made him dear to the young men of the nation. Moreover, his decisive actions have in all important issue proven, wise. He settled the coal strike, the Isthmian canal question, the Trust-building issue, and he settled them to stay settled. His methods smacked of the strenuous, but they were as effective as they were prompt.

"God give us men!
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog.
In public duty and in private thinking."
God give us men!
Men strong and brave and true, and not afraid.
Their duty seen, to do it promptly.

The Sluggers of Clearfield County Beaten By the C. T. A. U. Base Ball Team of Snow Shoe.

The most enthusiastic and interesting game of the season was played at Snow Shoe, when the C. T. A. U. team of Snow Shoe crossed bats with the Peale base ball team of Peale, who are known as the heaviest batting team of any amaetur team in Clearfield Co., taking ten innings to decide the name of the winner. The game was played on the ground of the Green, a ground fit for any professional team to play on. The game was hotly contested from start to finish, and neither side were sure of the game until the last man crossed the tender spot. The teams played more like professionals than ameteurs. The sluggers smiled "on the side" as the little south pawed Dutchman entered the box, but the way that gang went to work on those Peale boys like a lot of beef steak pounders in the In Side Inn at the St. Louis Fair, but the crack of doom did not sound until the third inning. Mr. Will Fleming, catcher for the Peale team, who is a likely young fellow and a good one was the first man to come to bat in the game, but he hit a grounder to Cashier at second, who is always in front of the ball when it comes to his country. Next was Capt. Fields, the fast shortstop of the Peale team, but he did the same thing as Fleming. The next and third man up was pitcher Kruger the largest man in the town of Peale, and many will remember that he is the strike out pitcher that beat the Snow Shoe base ball club some two weeks ago by the score of eleved to two in favor of Peale. but he was unable to do anything with the ball while at the bat, and so did the next best thing by striking out. The C. T. A. boys in their first time to bat were unable to score and so on it was goose eggs, until the third inning, when Pat Quirk the fastest out fielder in the town, and the boy that held Bellefonte M. A. C., on the tips of his fingers, wanted to knock the ball to the railroad, struck out. Next was Kelley who made a scratch hit, stole second and scored Will Plubells two-bagger, who won the box of cigars offered for the first two-bagger hit in the game. It was a dandy hit and he well deserves the cigars, for he always plays a fine game behind the bat, and is considered by the base ball fans of the town, as the best man they ever saw behind the bat for a Snow Shoe team. Peale did not do anything until the fourth, with Rumgay up and out, next Jas Fleming hit to Kelley, who made an error making Fleming safe at first. He went to second on A. Rumgays out at first, and to third on Jno. Flemings out at first. Then Lucas hit to right field scoring Fleming, and Schrader disposed of the next man in the one, two three order. The fifth inning was a blank for both sides. In the sixth pitcher Kruger made a two-bagger, and the only time that he hit the ball during the whole game, went to third on an error and scored on Jas. Flemings out at first base. Mr. Schrader took care of the next two men up, only throwing seven balls oven the pan, but that left whip of his was just getting in the best of shape, as it takes four or five innings hard pitching for him to warm up. The C. T. A. boys did not score any in the sixth but in the seventh D. Burns opened up the show with a long fly to center field and it looked for a time as if it would be a two-bagger, but W. Rumgay, Peale's center fielder, who is a runner of no little account made a fine catch df it. McGrorty was the next man up and he hit to Jno. Fleming who fumbled with the ball making him safe at first base, he stole second and third and scored on B. Plubell's out at first base, And then came the hottest part of the game with the score a tie. Two line drives ripped through the field like eight inch shells from a battle ship, now and then carrying away a chipping of a bit of shin bone for rememberance, also the long and short flies to the field were eaten up in all kinds of styles. McGrorty making two fine catches, one in the eighth and one in the ninth. Basil Plubell also made a grandstand catch of a line drive that had all kinds of steam behind it. Everybody in the C. T. A. team was alive and breathing hard throughout, not an error was made in either the eighth or ninth inning, all was pure and clean and spirited. The two pitchers set the pace and the men followed suit. All the way through the game the work of those C. T. A. boys was gilt edged, that is to say it had yellow chiffon trimming around the edge and a fluted yellow streak down the middle that looked like taffeta at a distance.

This is not saying that Peale was not in the game for they fought nobly at the ball trying to thump Mr. Schrader's left handed curves just as hard as the C. T. A. tried to thump Mr. Krugers, but the fever of winning got into their impoverished blood and broke out all over in a rash. Thus they wiggled along until the tenth two to two in favor of Jack Tobin, who was the star rooter in the grands tand along with a number of his trust Lieutenants, who could be heard for miles, but you could not blame them as it was an exciting time, and everybody had a little something to say and by the volume of sound that came from that hollow everybody must have been saying something, but it was in the tenth inning that the spell was broke. Peale came to the bat in their half of the tenth with a determination to win out but were not able to do anything. The first man up for Peale was Jno Fleming who managed to get to first. Lucas was next up, but Schraders hooks were fast getting sharp and he hooked Lucas in fast time. Then Jno Fleming tried to tear off to much at first and was stabbed. Will Fleming was the next man up and the last one, as he did the elegant for Peale by striking out. Then came the last half for the C. T. A. boys Basil Plubell struck out, Pat Quirk was next man up and he lifted the ball in the air and for a time it looked as if the ball had gone but it very soon appeared and dropped in Jas Fleming's hands. Kelley was the next man up and he pushed the ball over fields' head for a single went to third on Will Plubells hit. This was the critical point of the game, with the score tie two to two in the last half of the tenth and two men out with a man on third. All hands were busy now as Mr. Schrader came to the bat, he is a bunter and knows how to bunt, so made a nice little bunt, Kruger went after the ball fast but played Ping Pong with it then threw to first, but Schrader who is a fleet footed youngster managed to get to the bag on a slide, and in some way or other moved Peales first base man off the base causing him to fumble the ball and Kelley on third had his eyes open and on the ball, crossed Marcus Hook making the third and winning score. That is when the hundred spectators opened up and for twenty minutes they made the air ring with their shouts. Mr. Will Burns, who at sometime or other must of sat a rule book was the umpire and he did good work being satisfactory to both sides.

The C. T. A. Team is improving rapidly having won the last three games they have played, and they have not lost a game yet this season on their own grounds, and by the way they are playing at the present time they should keep it up as it looks as if they will be the fastest and strongest team in Clearfield or Centre Co., on Wednesday the 17th they play the streng Winburne team and on the 20th the Morrisdale team, which is the strongest team in Clearfield Co, having beaten everything that came their way. Both games will be played on the C. T. A. U. grounds at Snow Shoe, and there is not much doubt but that they will win both games. Manager Kelley is well pleased with the boys, and is trying to schedule games with stronger teams such as Lock Haven, Osceola, Clearfield and Houtzdale.

The battery Schrader and Plubell are as good a battery as there is playing with any amateur team in Central Pa., and all the rest of the players are equally as good. Frank Burns at first has played in every game this season without an error and is one of the sure hitters of the team. Cashier at second is a fast one and very rarely lets any get through him. D. Burns at third and the extra pitcher and Kelley at short are equally as good, and the out field is known for their work where ever they have played. All is due to the hard work of the team and Manager Kelley.

MILESBURG GOES DOWN AGAIN.

"Sons of Rest" Wins the Victory Saturday.

"The Walking Delegates of the Milesburg Loafers Union," came up to Bellefonte on Saturday and by the way the hot air was circulated, they were going to snap the "Sons of rest" of Bellefonie off the face of the earth. But Bill's feet had gotten warm again and he pitched a magnificent game, not leaving one man go to his base on balls, and had eleven strike outs, his support was fine and that counts a whole lot in a game of ball Scotty played a professional game and he and Hood were right there with the goods with their double plays which won the applause of the entire audience on the grandstand.

Fulton, Peters and McCoy in the field were all to the good, and a big mistake was made when McCoy was laid on the shelf in the 6th inning, as he was playing an excellent game The Milesburg boys played a better game than the Sons of Rest and had it not been for two overthrows by the 2nd baseman they would have won the game, as four runs were made by these two errors.

"Peck" Johnson was like a stone wall back of the bat and nothing went by him when he threw up those lunch hooks. The whole team were all to the "Muster" and show a wonderful improvement in their playing since the beginning of the season. A more perfect line should be made to show the difference between a fair ball and foul in the left field, as every game that is played in the meadow a lot of time is taken up discussing this point.

Academy Contract Awarded.

The Trustees of the Bellefonte Academy met Monday afternoon and opened the bids, of which there were six, for the election of the new Academy building. The contract after deliberation was awarded to Contractor Henry Lowry and work will be begun at once and the building pushed to completion which this capable contractor can do in a short time.

The additions and improvements are so many, there being a great increase in capacity of the building, that the contract was considerably in excess of the insurance received but it will greatly add to the credit of both the institution and redound to the benefit of Bellefonte and its famous "School in the Mountains."

The building committee appointed consists of F. W. Crider, Frank McCoy, Jas Harris, J. L. Montgomery and John Blanchard who will see that everything is done in such a lasting and able manner that it will add another century to the history of the Academy that has turned out so many famous men in all walks of life.

The Latest from the Jail Breakers.

Green, Dillen, Henderson and Constance, the four men charged with the killing of Turnkey Condo, were removed on Saturday to separate cells on the second floor of the jail. The men are still guarded night and day by watchmen Eberhart and Garbrick.

Mr. and Mrs. William Green parents of Ira Green, who live at Runville visited their son on Saturday at the jail. Mrs Green was very much overcome, but the prisoner did not seem to be in the least affected, saying that it was to late to cry now that it was all over with him. After his mother left the jail, however, it is said Green broke down completely.

District Attorney N. B. Spangler and Col. E. R. Chambers are working on the case and next Monday it will be given to the grand jury. The evidence there will probable be short, so that the case may reach Court Monday afternoon.

Henry C. Quigley Esq., has been appointed attorney for the four prisoners, Green, Dillen, Henderson and Constance and will defend them in Court next week.

Good Americans Ideas.

Victor Hugo was a good American in sentiment, thought he never saw America. In one of his books he tells us what he thinks of the men he had seen in the course of his long life. He says that, in whatever rank or station, of whatever land or race, man is man—no more, no less.

"After watching all these things pass, I say, humanity is another name for equality. Beneath the heavens there is but one thing we need bow to: Genius. One thing to which we should kneel Goodness."

GEORGE BURNS DEAD.

He Was the Pioneer Newspaper Man at State College.

George Washington Burns died at Middleburg, Pa., on Friday morning, Aug. 5th, at 1 o'clock. His age was 38 years.

Mr. Burns will be remembered by many people about State College as having established the Times at that place. He was born in Selinsgrove, and learned printing there. He practiced his trade in several large printing establishments in the West, after which he came east and set up in the newspaper business first at Williamstown and, in 1898, at State College. Ill health compelled him in 1900 to leave his growing business at State College, and to retire to his early home in Selinsgrove. Mr. Burns was a pleasant and agreeable man and had many friends who will regret to learn of his untimely death.

DEATH OF JOSEPH HOY.

Dies at His Home in State College—A Brother of the Late Judge Hoy.

Joseph Hoy, one of the most prominent citizens of State College, died at his home in that place at 12 o'clock Monday of apoplexy after only a few hours illness.

The deceased was born in Spring township 72 years ago and was a brother of the late Judge Adam Hoy, of Bellefonte. He was a successful farmer and an honored citizen. He was a trustee and a member of the Lutheran church.

Surviving him are his three sons, Emory, of Philadelphia; Newton and William, of State College.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Aikens officiating. Interment in the Pine Hall cemetery.

Death of Matthias Evans.

Matthias Evans, formerly a well known citizen of Centre county, died at the home of his son, F. B. Evans, of Wilkinsburg on Saturday Aug. 13th, aged 73 years, 3 months and 12 days. All his life up to about 18 years ago was spent near Curtin. He was baptized into membership with the Milesburg Baptist church. Feb, 28th, 1858, and remained an active christian worker all his life. Since his removal from Centre county he has resided respectively in Williamsport and Wilkinsburg. His wife preceded him to the spirit world about 8 years ago. He is survived by three sons, Fred B., of Wilkinsburg; John, of Duncansville, and Ambrose, of Pittsburg. There also remain to mourn his death a brother, Constance, of Williamsport, and two sisters, Mrs Myron Cox and Mrs. Sarah Funk, both of Curtin.

The remains were brought to Curtin on Monday afternoon and services in his memory were held in the M. E. church of that place, conducted by Rev. A. C. Lathrop, of Milesburg, after which the remains were entered in the Curtin cemetery. Thus closes the earthly record of another faithful servant of God and man.

Death of Fred Bottorf.

Fred Bottorf aged 63 years passed away Monday at his home on Main street, Pine Grove Mills. He had been ill but two weeks with that dread disease Typhoid fever, two nurses were study in attendance at his bed side and all that kind hands and loving friends could do, was done to alleviate his sufferings.

He was a good citizen, a kind friend and neighbor and was prominently identified with the business interests of the town. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. A. J. Krape and Mrs Howard Goss, of Pine Grove Mills also one brother and three sisters.

He was a member of the Lutheran church from boyhood and was a regular attendant at its services. The funeral will take place this morning at 10 o'clock. Rev Aikens officiating. Interment in the new cemetery.

Death of Mrs. George Weaver.

Mrs. Clara Weaver, wife of George B. Weaver, died in the Bellefonte hospital on Wednesday morning Aug. 10, at 9 o'clock. The cause of her death was gangrene in the right limb below the knee. She had been ill four weeks.

Her maiden name was Clara B Durst and she was born in Potter township 39 years ago. She is survived by her husband and three children, Henry, James and Mary; also by three brothers, Peter, in Dakota; and James, of California; and the following sisters: Mrs. Henry Montgomey, of Bellefonte and Mrs. John Rine, of Tyrone.

The funeral services were held in the Episcopal church Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment in the Union cemetery.

—E. H. Grove, who is a tenant on the Clara Evans' farm, 2½ miles east of Bellefonte, has in his possession 49 heads of wheat raised from three grains sown last fall. The heads average from 5½ to 6½ inches in length and contains an average of 90 grains to the head—showing a yield of 4,410 grains from the three originally planted.

When a boy turns his bulging pocket inside out we marvel at the quantity and variety of articles he has stowed away. Odd lengths of string, marbles, a horse-chestnut, a top, brass nails, hickory-nuts, an apple, and many more articles are garnered by this "snapper up of unconsidered trifles." We think the collection must be hard on a boy's pocket. And it is But do we ever think of the variety and miscellany of the substances we put into the pocket of our stomach? There's the apple and the nuts, and things besides quite as indigestible as brass nails and with no more food value than so many marbles. And yet we wonder that the stomach "gives out." When the stomach breaks down under the strain of care'ess eating and irregular meals it can be perfectly and permanently restored to health and strength by the use of Doctor Piere's Golden Medical Discovery. The action of this medicine on the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition is so marked, that relief from disease is at once experienced, and the headache, liver "troubles," kidney disorders, skin eruption and other symptoms of a diseased stomach are quickly cured. Whenever the use of a laxative medicine is indicated, use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They act in harmony with the "Discovery" and assist its action by purging the bowels of foul accumulations.

Mr. Fiedler Leaves the DuBois Journal.

The DuBois Journal in speaking of James A. Fiedler has the following to say in its Saturday issue:

James A. Fiedler, who came to the Journal as its editor with the first issue of the paper, has returned to Williamsport where he will remain until the fall terms of school open, when he will become principal in one of the schools in Centre county.

Mr. Fiedler had charge of the editorial work of this paper from its first issue until July 1st last, when he was compelled to cease night work on account of his eyes. After that he took charge of the circulation department of the Journal, and remained in that capacity until he severed his connection with this paper this week and returned to his home.

There is no brighter or more ready newspaper writer in the interior of the state than Mr. Fiedler. His writings are of a sunny disposition and his opinion on public questions are sound to the core. The Journal realizes its loss, and trusts that his new occupation will be less injurious to his health than the constant strain that the editorial work of a morning newspaper brings to one.

Academy Students Attention.

The Bellefonte Academy, romantically known as "The School in the Mountains" enters in September upon her centennial year of successful service.

Hundreds of our best men and woman owe their success in life to the foundation education received within the old Academy walls. The memories of those school days ought to be dear to every student.

It is a fond and general purpose to make this centennial year the Red Letter year in the history of the school—to be concluded with a most fitting and delightful two day's celebration on June 15 and 16, 1905. One very practical way in which to accomplish this worthy purpose is for every old student to persuade at least one new student to cast in his lot with the restored Academy and thereby enjoy the privilege of participating in the Centennial Jubilee pure discipuli.

The fall term will open on Tuesday, Sept. 13 unless otherwise announced by the principal.

—Special services will be held in the Reformed church at Zion, Thursday and Friday evenings of this week. The Holy Communion will be celebrated next Sunday morning. Evening service in St. John's Reformed church, Bellefonte.

Panama Can be Made Healthy.

The health question, during construction, is one of the important elements of the canal problem. While no one will claim that the climate of the Isthmus is salubrious, it is certain that much wild exaggeration has been circulated, in great part founded on the experience of ill-acclimated laborers engaged in excavating surface soil for the railroad or for the canal. Fortunately, most of the work on the latter has now reached a level below the poisonous emanations or decaying organic matter, and during recent years the percentage of disease and mortality has not exceeded that on large works in any country. The actual facts are set forth in a table prepared from his official records by Dr. Lacroisade, for many years the medical director of the fine Company Hospital situated on the heights above the city of Panama He insists that the disease most to be dreaded, yellow fever, is not epidemic on the Isthmus and, as in the Southern States, may be excluded by proper precautionary measures. The table itself is encouraging, since the mean percentages in the three epochs show nearly constant values for the diseases of Europe, and a great reduction for diseases due to the climate, under the improved conditions of the latter work.—Gen. H. L. Abbot, in The Engineering Magazine for August.

The Science of Modern Advertising.

After the advertising man has been choosen, the scope of his work decided upon, and his status in the business organization determined, how shall he go about his work? First, its field very thoroughly. He should not only know all the details of the machinery built by his concern, but he should also know how they compare with similar features of competitors' goods. He should know in what kind of plants his goods are used, and he should know at what seasons such plants plan improvements and in what part of the country these plants are located. He should known who buys the goods, and who tells the buyer what to buy, and who tells this man what to tell the buyer. What manner of men are these, what are their habits of thought and observation, what will interest them most and how best can they be reached? All these are very interesting and very important questions, and in their partial solution lies the reason why the man that has grown up with the business frequently does much better advertising for a machinery house than can possibly be be done by the professional advertising expert. The men he appeals to are usually busy men and men of sense: First of all, they want a good clear picture of the machinery and some indication of its capacity. The rest must be a truthful message, briefly told, without either startling or humorous effects, or anything that smacks of the catch-penny.—Russel M. Seeds, in The Engineering Magazine for August.

Treat Your Kidneys for Rheumatism

When you are suffering from rheumatism, the kidneys must be attended to at once so that they will eliminate the uric acid from the blood. Foley's Kidney Cure is the most effectice remedy for this purpose. R. F. Hopkins, of Polar, Wis., says, "After unsuccessfully doctoring three years for rheumatism with the best doctor, I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and it cured me I cannot speak too highly of this great medicine." C. M. Parrish.

When Shoreward Bound.

Don't take feathers. They will get out of curl immediately.

It's well to take an extra wreath of flowers for your hat. They soon get lifeless and faded.

Your clothing will need to be laundered often. It doesn't soil so much as it turns yellow and crumples.

Sea air is hard on chiffon veils, but a careful ironing will rejuvenate them.

Elaborate muslins are unsatisfactory things for shore wear. Silk and wool crepe serge, pongee, albatross, cotton voile and china silk are the best fabrics, and in light shades can be made dressy for evening wear.

Don't hang your gowns in the closet. Even there the damp sea air will wilt them Fold them smoothly and lay in a drawer or back in trunk.

Even if your pretty dresses do wilt they are not ruined. The stiffness will come back with dry air. But the point is to look fresh and unbedraggled while at the shore and to do this it is best to choose the fabrics named above.

IT MUST BE TRUE.

Bellefonte Readers must Come to that Conclusion.

It is not the telling of a single case in Bellefonte but scores of citizens testify. Endorsement by people you know bears the stamp of truth. Then following is one of the public statements made in this locality about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Geo. Gross of Water Street says: "In the summer of 1895 I used Doan's Kidney Pills for backache, procuring them from the Bush Block drug store. Accompanying the pain in my back was an annoyance from the kidney secretions. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me after I had been troubled for years. I thought I was going to have backache again but two years afterwards I went fishing got soaked through and this ended in effecting my back I again restored my old cure Doan's Kidney Pills and they did me good immediately although in the meantime I had taken other remedies but without obtaining relief. I can as conscientiously recommend Doan's Kidney Pills now as I did formerly for backache or kidney trouble."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

BRINGS THE

SUNSHINE OF HEALTH AND HAPPINESS TO SICK WOMEN.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Very often a married woman or young girl does not know who to turn to for advice in circumstances where she dislikes to talk with the family physician about delicate matters. At such times write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for free consultation and advice, and the same will be held as sacredly confidential. It is foolish to consult women friends or persons without medical training.

All other compounds intended for women only are made with alcohol, or alcohol is a large component—this alcohol injures the nerves. The little red corpuscles of the blood are shrunken by alcohol. All such compounds, therefore, do harm.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was the first exclusively woman's tonic on the market—it has sold more largely in the past third of a century than any other medicine for women.

DON'T BE WOOZY!

NERO

was a most crafty Roman, but he made one mistake.

He committed suicide at the wrong end of his life.

He should have shuffled off at the beginning.

A great many business men today are committing business suicide at the wrong end of their lives

They mean well at the start, but drift away from their good resolutions.

One means or a long and prosperous business life is to have good printing and stationery.

A business is judged by its rinted matter.

THE REPUBLICAN

Job Printing Department is prepared to furnish the best.

Cost is a secondary consideration when you consider the quality—sufficient it is to say our prices are so reasonable that it would be a waste of shoe leather to look further.

It has a distinctiveness all its own—a something that distinguishes it from the common trash of the ordinary shop.

Again we say:

"Don't be Woozy."

Think it over and for your next order, remember the Job Printing Department.

"MICKIE" A. C. SWAMPED.

Snow Shoe Temperance Boys do the Crippling,

Old "Sol" was very kind to the base ball fiends on Wednesday as he hid his warm face behind the clouds mostly all day, and at short intervals when the boys got too hot and excited he would use his sprinkling can to cool them off a little, but taking it all in all it was a magnificent day for ball playing.

We have an aggregation in Bellefonte called the "Mickie Athletic Club" composed of some of the best young men in the town and in time they will be able to play ball, but as they stand now, a good bit of good solid practice every day would not come amiss to them.

Snow Shoe has another aggregation called the "Catholic Temperance Association Union," and a better and more sociable crowd of fellows you would'nt want to run across in ten years travel.

So when they came to Bellefonte Wednesday and the whole push stopped with mine host Mosebarger who must have filled them with something to make them play ball for when they crossed bats on the meadow with the "Mickie's" they seemed inspired with a super natural feeling that made them all play like professionals. They seemed maddened by the presence of so much easy meat, and climbed all over the Mickie's and beat them 10 to 7.

The game started at 2:30 with the mountaineers at the bat. Bill Rine was supposed to be there to pitch for our boys but he got cold feet and was conspicuous by his absence. Toby Shultz, of Centre Hall, being on the field was put in the box and he played an excellent game and up until he retired in Skull's favor he had struck out four men and gave none their bases on balls.

"Curley" Skull surprised the whole push by his wonderful Waddell curves and held the "Coalfield" boys down to a close score.

Plubell started started the ball rolling for the "Temperance" boys by knocking a pretty one out to second and through an error of Fulton's he made the first run.

"Dutch" Shrader with his wonderful Philadelphia curves struck out Keeler the first of our boys at the bat, but when Toby Shultz stood up he sent a bird out to Burns who fumbled it and left the Valley lad get to first.

"Pete" Mack played a wonderfully good game and knows just how to wait on his good elegant balls, he made a dandy three bagger through errors of "Mountaineers."

The first three innings our boys did'nt get a smell but in the fourth Confer and Keeler came home and scored two runs for the "Mickies."

When the game was half over Skull and Miller were put in as a new battery and Bob Hood, of the "Roosevelts" as short stop, and if these three had been in from the beginning the score no doubt would have been just the opposite.

"Pat" Quirk a youngster in the base ball world with a wonderful bright future before him played the best game of all. He is safe at the bat and in the field and the Snow Shoe boys can feel proud of him because he made some excellent plays in this game. Everytime he came up to the bat he would hit the ball, and out of the ten runs he had three to his credit, wait and you will hear of him later. The game ended amid great enthusiasm and our boys took their defeat calmly and gentlemanly and it was the expression all around that all were perfectly satisfied. Even with umpire Wood, who understands the game thoroughly, and his decisions were all to the good.

The Snow Shoe fellows attribute their victories to their "Mascott Duffie the cockeyed boy" who is known as the walking delegate of the loafers union, the "Mickies" should look up a fellow of this kind and see what they could do in the future.

Fish and Game Laws for August.

The Monthly Bulletin of the Division of Zoology, issued from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, gives the following on the state fish and game laws for August, which will be of interest to the sportsmen in their vicinity.

"The fish and game laws for this month are not the same as for last, and persons who wish to take recreation with rod or gun should bear in mind the changes, as should also persons who wish to protect their trout, game birds and game. The only species of fish for which the season closed with the end of July were the various kind of trout, excepting the lake trout of salmon trout. The latter may be caught until the end of this month, but all other trout are protected until the fifteenth of next April.

"The Penobscot salmon or grilse may be caught until the fifteenth of this month, when the closed season commences and continues until the first of next March. All other fish may be caught during this entire month and continuing during the remainder of the year.

"The season for plover opened the middle of last month and continues until the end of this year. The summer season for the woodcock was during July only, and now this bird will be protected by a closed season until the middle of October. Beginning with the first of next month gunners may shoot rail, reed birds and web-footed wild fowl, but there are no birds or mammals classed as game that may be killed during the month of August.

"The birds that are not protected and may be killed at any time during the year are the English sparrow, kingfishers, crow, Cooper's hawk, sharp shinned hawk, duck hawk, pigeon hawk, great horned owl, barred owl, green heron and night heron. The mammals that are not protected and consequently, may be killed at any time during the year are the pine or red squirrel, opossum, bear, wild cat, porcupine, woodchuck or groundhog, skunk, racconn as well as the mink, weasels, muskrats, foxes, chip munk and various kinds of rats and mice, bats, moles and shrews.

For Over Sixty Years.

It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cure wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Sold by all druggists in every part of the world. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" and take on other kind.

Bronchitis for Twenty] Years.

Mrs. Minerva Smith, of Danville, Ill., writes: "I had bronchitis for twenty years and never got relief until I used Foley's Honey and Tar which is a cure ure." C. M. Parrish.

A Physician Healed.

Dr. Geo. Ewing, a practicing physician of Smith's Grove, Ky. for over thirty years, writes his personal experience with Foley's Kidney Cure: "For years I had been greatly bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and enlarged prostrate gland. I used everything known to the profession without relief, until I commenced to use Foley's Kidney Cure. After taking three bottles I was entirely relieved and cured. I prescribe it now daily in my practice and heartily recommend its use to all physicians for such troubles. I have prescribed it in hundreds of cases with perfect success. C. M. Parrish.

The Greene County Democrat warns the people of that county that they will have to keep their roads in passable condition to insure the continuance of rural free delivery.

Rural free delivery is a sort of a premium for good roads.

The Morgantown Post says that if that community wants factories they must go after them; that towns are built up by helpers and not by croakers; that it requires faith, a little cash and some courage to make the wheels go around.

Morgantown seems to have some of those croackers herself. There are other towns.

The McKeesport Times advises parents to encourage their boys to patronize the Carnegie free library instead of buying trashy novels which distort their minds ruin their manhood.

This advice may well be heeded by Bellefonte parents. We have a Y. M. C. A., free library here, and if the boys and girls patronize it and permit their course of reading to be guided there, the town will have no cause to complain of the citizens they make.

The Unfontown Genius, noting the story from Berlin that the brilliant Japanese General Kuroki is a Pole, says it is a mistake; that he is a native of Fayette county, his birthplace being not far from that of General Joubert.

THE GINGER JAR.

In Case of Drought.

Were I to feel a most inspiring thirst.
With dryness should my temples seem to burst.
Where do you think that I would wander first?
Oh, surely not to any place that's tough,
Where rowdies congregate and talk is rough,
And no one ever thinks he's had enough.
Not me! I'd seek a spot of Christian cheer.
Where, on the walls, I'd read my title clear.
And Bishop Potter would set up the beer.

The First Boodler.

Romulus and Remus were being nourished by the wolf.

"Wait a minute, Reme," said Romulus. "As I have to found Rome next week I need strength. You can have what is left when I get through."

Realizing that his brother was the original boodle Alderman. Remus went hungry. Sorrowing because Joe Folk was busy in Missouri.

Ductility.

"You can draw on a cigar for comfort and inspiration," remarked the Coleville philosopher.

"But the old man's bank account is more reliable when you have to pay a board bill."

Tom Makes Good.

"What are the wild waves saying?"
Said sweet, romantic Sue.
"They're echoing my thoughts'" said Tom,
"And saying "We want you."

"If Diogenes had been looking for the biggest coward instead of an honest man" remarked the man who enjoys the game for itself alone, "it wouldn't have taken him but two innings to pick out the fellow who hollers 'kill him' the loudest from a safe seat in the bleachers."

The Knockers' Club.

Let dogs delight to bark and bite,
But, as for me and you,
We'll gossip morning, noon and night
And wield the hammer, too.

Prescott's Mistake.

The British forces, after awful loss, had finally taken Bunker Hill.

"It was my fault," said the gallant American Captain. "I told the men to wait till they could see the whites of their eyes. I should have delayed until the enemy was ours and then sent a telegram."

Perceiving that he knew nothing of modern tactics, he expired.

The Usual Result

"Hear you've been speculating, old man. What did you realize?"

"I realized that I was a blamed fool," replied the other man, sorely.

Eclipsed.

The man who rocks the cranky boat
To desperation's goaded.
As likewise the unthinking goat
Who didn't know 'twas loaded.
Their deeds are thrown quite in the shade.
The bun now goes to him
Who drives his auto down the grade
With mile-a-minute vim

The World's Fair.

One way for a girl to be beautiful is to have a million dollars in her own name.

Perhaps the reason a woman wants the most expensive kind of silk is because she can not realize how that lovely kind came from a worm.

An awfully proper girl has conscience beaten a block when it comes to telling you what you ought not to do.

A girl doesn't have to study the multiplication table to understand all about figures.

Like the Rains of Summer.

VIN-TE-NA acts upon tired, nerve-racked humanity precisely as a shower of rain acts upon withering, sun-scorched vegetation. It brings heart-sick, half-sick discouraged people back to buoyant health, and does it quickly There is not an element of experiment about this greatest of tonics. It is a scientific certainty, and to fail to do precisely what it was designed to do would be like reversing the law of cause and effect.

If convalescent, if you are languid, if you are tired in the morning, if you are discouraged, if you are nervous and fretful, if you are constantly worrying, if you are weak without knowing why, if your appetite is poor, if you sleep badly, if your circulation is poor, if you are half-sick and feel heavy and draggy and discontented, VIN-TE-NA is just the tonic you require. It will give you the kind of health you have envied in others. It will get you past the danger line of serious sickness.

Take VIN-TE-NA and tell others about it. It cures by making pure, red blood, and thus giving force and stamina to the nerves all over the body. Where the blood and nerves are to blame for a weakened nervous condition VIN-TE-NA simply cannot fail to effect a speedy cure. It seems to actually make new nerves, new blood and new vigor. Under its electrifying influence the weak and exhausted feelings give place to strength and buoyancy, the brain becomes clear, the nerves strong and steady, the gloom of weakness and the depression of impending disease are lifted from the mind and perfect pleasure-giving health is restored.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—James Shook preached an excellent sermon at Howard on Sunday evening.

—A son has been born to the Czar and Czarina of Russia. The child will be named Alexis.

—The 8th annual Golden Rod dance will be held in the Armory Friday evening September 9th.

—Mr. David Behres, of Benore, celebrated his 77th birthday anniversary Sunday August 7. All his children and grandchildren, to the number of twenty-five, were gathered around the dinner table.

—Miss Mary Butts, Emma Holliday, Louise Armor, Lulu Harper, Emma Aikens and Mildred and Lulu Smith were camping along Spring creek last week, with James Harris and Jerome Harper as general camp roustabouts.

—Last Thursday night during a thunder storm five cows and two bulls belonging to G. F. Weaver, of near Penns Cave, were killed by lightning. The cattle were valuable stock and quite a loss to Mr. Weaver.

—Major Harry A. Miller, of the Fifth regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, will present a handsome bronze statue as a trophy to the company of the Fifth which shows the best total score for rifle practice at the end of the season, November 1.

—The $15 reward offered by Bellefonte Castle, K. G. E., for the recovery of Edward Gehret's body, who was drowned by falling from a bridge during the flood on Beech Creek last spring was awarded to Alexander Lucas, of Hayes Run.

—Major General Beaver, former governor and judge of the superior court, has been placed on the retired list of the national guard at his own request. Gen. Beaver commanded the second brigade previous to his election as governor. He still manifests considerable interest in the guard.

—The Hon. John B. Stetson, of Philadelphia, has presented to Bucknell University, two one hundred horse power boilers for the electric lighting plant being installed this summer for lighting the thirteen university buildings and the campus. Mr. Stetson is a member of the board of trustees of the university and has contributed from time to time toward the endowment and building funds.

—Notices are being displayed in the postoffices, under orders from the Washington department, imposing a penalty of two hundred dollars upon any one taking mail from the office other than his own. The notice states that as postmasters are liable to make mistakes in placing mail or newspapers in the wrong box, those finding other mail in their boxes are requested to return it at once.

—Never growl because a newspaper fails to give every scrap of news, so long as you take no pains to give the editor information. Readers are awfully put out at times because no note has been made of the arrival or departure of friends visiting them, or of social affairs, or the new babies that visit their homes over night. The average reporter isn't a medium nor a mind reader, but gets most of his news the same way the milkman gets his milk—by pumping.

—By an explosion of acetylene gas in the basement of the Lewisburg post. office, Saturday morning, the building was badly damaged Morgan Bennett, whose mother owns the building, had gone into the basement to charge the tank. He carried a lantern and its flame communicated to the gas. A terrific explosion followed, badly wrecking the first floor of the building which immediately took fire. The blaze was quickly extinguished. Bennett was uninjured, although his escape from death was miraculous.

—Officials throughout the country are making preparations for one of the biggest fall movements in freight ever handled by railroads. Various reasons are given why they expect a rush of business. One reason of renewed activity is the fact that little iron and steel products have been turned out of the mills during the past few months. No manufacturing plant has any stock on hand and orders are already pouring in rapidly. By fall these orders will be ready for shipment. Another reason for the renewed freight increase is the fact that the western crops are good. Last year a large amount of grain had to be stored away because the railroad officials were unable to supply cars Fruit was allowed to rot. The railroad officials are determined this year to bring to market all that grows. The resumption of many mills increase the demand for coal, which also adds to the freight traffic.

—The members of U. B. church of Paradise, contemplate holding a festival Sept. 2 and 3 for benefit of the church. A good time is assured all who come.

—A monument 5 feet 6 inches high of dark barre granite is being erected on the Swiler burying lot in the Union cemetery by Frank B. Gibson of Lock Haven.

—Assistant Baggage Master Joseph Undercoffer injured his left arm at the elbow Friday afternoon quite severely. He caught it between the train and a truck of baggage.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Lingle entertained a number of friends at dinner Monday evening at their pleasant home on Linn street in honor of their son Harold, it being the anniversary of his birth.

—A slightly built man with a clean shaven face, black eyes and hair and gives his name as B. L. Smith, is imposing on many Catholics and Episcopalians throughout the state. Be on the lookout for him.

—Mrs. Jesse Wert, aged 60 years, while attempting to pick pears from a tree at her home in Aaronsburg, Wednesday, became dizzy and fell off the tree, breaking her collar bone. Dr. C. S. Musser was summoned and set the fractured bone.

—Fine lemons, ripe, juicy fruit at 15c, 20c, 30c, and 40cts, per dozen. The finest fruit we have ever sold at these prices in July or August. Fine oranges at 30c, 40c, and 50c, per dozen. Fine bananas and pine apples at very reasonable prices. Sechler & Co.

—There is a pole cat in town. The residents of East Lamb street were visited by the animal Friday evening and a few nights ago you could smell it way down in the diamond. The residents of that section of the town are hoping that some means may be devised by which the animal may be caught or driven away.

—Our enterprising stationer Mr. Geo. T. Bush has gotten out a post card which retails for 2 cents showing the Curtin Memorial and Soldiers Monument as it will look when in place in front of the Court House. It will be an interesting souvenir for home people to mail away to their friends.

—Old Fan, the oldest horse in Centra Pennsylvania, and possibly the oldest in the state, was killed a few days ago on account of having had a leg broken by a kick from another horse. She was owned by Hon. Wm. T. Young, of Farrandsville, and was foaled in the spring of 1864, making her over 40 years old. She did service as a general business horse until six years ago.

—The Y. P. C. U., of the U. B. church will hold a Poverty Social at their church on Saturday evening Aug. 20th. All are cordially invited to attend, taking care to come in appropriate attire, as a small fine will be placed on all articles of elegance or luxury. There will be ice cream and cake sold and suitable refreshments will be served free Come everybody and enjoy yourself. Committee.

—Harry I. Goodman, former private secretary to Senator B. K. Focht, died at the home of his parents at Lewisburg Saturday morning, of tuberculosis. Mr. Goodman contracted a heavy cold at the inauguration of President McKinley in 1901, and had never been well since. For the past four years he had been chief clerk in the State Banking Department at Harrisburg. He was aged forty-five years and was unmarried.

—Rev. George Curtis Fisher, of Mt. Pleasant, Pa., preached two eloquent and forceful sermons in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening Large audiences were present and close attention was given to the speaker on both occasions. Walter Mattern of New York sang a beautiful tenor solo in the morning and Henry Brown favored the audience with a bass solo at the evening service. Both were much appreciated.

—The editor of the Bellefonte Republican has received an invitation to a reception to be given by Governor and Mrs. Pennypacker in the Pennsylvania Building at the St. Louis Exposition on Pennsylvania Day which will be observed on August 20th. The officials of the exposition will be present as well as the representatives of all the foreign countries which have exhibits and the commissioners to the exposition from the various states.

—Mr. Wm. Raphael, many years ago a resident of this place, died at his home in Valparaiso, Nebraska, on Saturday morning, July 30th. Mr. Raphael will be remembered as a painter, residing in that portion of Bellefonte known at that time as Cheapside, a half a century ago. He carried on the business of house painting and paper hanging and about the close of the war emigrated west, first locating in Illinois, and afterwards making his home at Valparaiso. He was noted for his cheerful disposition, his good fellowship and his ever readiness to do a favor for a neighbor or friend, He died at the ripe old age of 91, with the respect and esteem of all who knew him.

—"I had diabetes in its worst form," writes Marion Lee of Dunreath, Ind. "I tried eight physicians without relief. Only three bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure made me a well man. C. M. Parrish.

FATALLY BURNED.

Terrible Accident Which Befell a Former Bellefonte Lady.

The Altoona Tribune of Saturday gives the following particulars of the death of Mrs. Forrester, a native of Bellefonte:

Mrs. Emma V. Forrester, of 306 Fourth avenue, was the victim of a horrible accident on Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock, which was attended with fatal results. Her husband, William Forrester, an engineer, had just come home from work and gone to bed. Mrs. Forrester made preparation to do her ironing, and when she was heating a gasoline stove an explosion of the inflammable stuff occurred, completely enveloping her in flames. It is supposed she had turned the flame in the stove out to put in more gasoline and that the explosion was either caused by the burner not being turned completely off or by the heated condition of the stove, causing the gasoline to ignite.

Helen, her young daughter, was in the same room and her piercing screams together with those made by the mother in her agony, aroused the husband from his slumber. He immediately hurried to her assistance and found that her whole body from head to feet was burned black, all the hair being burned from her head. The injured women was quickly conveyed to the hospital, where she passed away from the effects of the terrible burns at 1:35 o'clock in the afternoon. Her husband was at her bedside when she died.

Mrs. Forrester was born in Bellefonte and is survived by her husband and one daughter, Helen, age 10 years. She is also survived by two brothers and two sisters, viz: Frank Downing, of Bellefonte; George W. Downing, who boards at 306 Fourth avenue, Mrs. R. A. Hoover, of 318 Fifth avenue and Mrs. Reuben Spangler of Hasting. The deceased was a member of the Protestant Episcopal church. The remains were taken Friday evening to the residence of her sister, Mrs. R. A. Hoover, 318 Fifth avenue, where the funeral services were held. Interment was made in Oak Ridge cemetery.

Centre County Picnic.

The Centre County Club of DuBois held their first annual picnic on Thursday. In speaking of it the DuBois Courier says:

The strenuosity of the members of the Centre County club was put to the test Thursday, the occasion of their first picnic. The time billed for the departure of the special train on the Juniata road was 9:30, and at that hour the weather indications were such as would justify even Mr. Hicks in saying that it would probably rain within thirty minutes. But up on the assurance from Manager Fiedler that it was going to be a fine day, the former residents of Centre county and their friends to the number of about seventy-five, heavily ladened with provisions, boarded the train for the woods. By the time they reached the woods the sky had cleared and the sun shone clear and warm, making the shade of the trees very comfortable.

While the young folks amused themselves in divers ways the heads of families began preparations for dinner, and at 12 o'clock the entire company assembled in family groups and enjoyed a hearty meal.

The afternoon was pleasantly spent with games, etc., and at 5:30 the club returned to town, each member well satisfied with the first outing of the new organization.

Among the out of town people present were Mrs. Hoover, of Uniontown, and Mr. Weaver, of Bellefonte.

Arranging for the Veteran Club's Picnic.

The Executive committee of the Centre County Veteran Club met in Secretary W. H. Musser's office in the Crider Building at 10 a. m., Saturday with Gen. Beaver in the chair. Saturday September 10 was set as the date for holding the Veteran Club basket picnic and Hunter's Park is the place selected.

The committee on Transportation are Gen. Curtin, S. B. Miller, Thomas McCafferty.

Arrangements W. H. Musser, Amos Garbrick, Chas. Eckenroth.

General Beaver was selected as a committee of one to secure the speakers. Several prominent speakers from at home and from a distance will be present and deliver addresses.

Several bands will discourse delightful music and a general good time is assured to all who attend.

Ex-Governor Pattison A Woman Suffragist.

The late Governor Pattison of Pennsylvania, whose political life challenged the respect of supporters and opponents of all parties, was a strong advocate of woman suffrage. Not long ago he made this statement:

"I believe in the States where woman suffrage has already been tried it has been accompanied with success. In the city of Philadelphia the election of women to the School Board, and their appointment to the Board of Control, have been of great advantage. I am satisfied that in the educational administration of the State their admission to the fullest power and authority will be accompanied with the greatest advantage to the Commonwealth."

Mr. John Dullen of Mill Hall was a pleasant caller at the Republican office while in town Saturday and finding it impossible to get along without the Republican, added his name to our already large and daily increasing list. Mr. Dullen is a republican of the old school and a strong adherent of the Republican principles.

William H. Fry, a son of Captain W. H. Fry, of Pine Grove Mills, has gone to Wichita, Kansas, and expects later to go to California. He had been working for several years in the Wilmerding shops at Pittsburg but owing to dull times he was among those who were laid off. The young man, like his father, is to much of a hustler to be idle long and so he struck in search of work and to see thecountry also.

Mr. J. W. Kramer of Longford, Clay County, Kansas, a former resident of Pleasant Gap, surprised his friends by dropping in on them unexpectedly Friday evening to pay them a visit. This is Mr. Kramer's first visit east in 15 years, and in company with his brother Mr. Wm. Kramer of Quaker Hill, at whose home he is visiting, paid the Republican office a pleasant call Saturday. We found them both pleasant and agreeable gentlemen whom it is a pleasure to meet.

Rev. Dr. Holloway had a delightful reunion of his children and grand-children at his pleasant home on Linn Street, the last few days. His sons Luther and Harry from Philadelphia, with their little daughter Salome, and son William, respectively, and Paul from Altoona and daughter Daisy of Pittsburg, spent the Sunday under the paternal roof. They all attended religious services Sunday, and had a pleasant greeting from many of the Doctor's people.

The venerable Thomas Waddle, of Jersey Shore, favored the Republican office with a call Saturday morning. Mr. Waddle was here to attend the Benner Waddle-Hamilton family reunion. When he informed us that he was 85 years old we could hardly realize it, for he is as hale and hearty and the grip of his hand as firm as a man of fifty. He related many interesting incidents of ye earlier days in Centre Co., and says that the Bellefonte Republican was the first ever started in the county, being originally the Bellefonte Patriot. Years ago Mr. Waddle was elected treasurer on the Republican ticket in Democratic Lycoming county.

Mr. Geo. D. Bayard, of Bellefonte, who is employed in a large drug store at Glenn Campbell, was the guest over last Sunday of Rev. W. T. Auman, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church of Clearfield. He sang two solos one at the morning services and one in the evening.

John J. Fleming of Connellsville is a guest of his old schoolmate, Capt W. H. Fry at his pleasant home in Pine Grove Mills. Mr. Fleming was a former resident of Nittany Valley and this is his first visit in this vicinity in 25 years. Capt. Fry and Mr. Fleming have been close friends since boyhood, being at one time members of the Pine Grove Academy and when the Civil war broke out they together entered the service of their country and served faithfully during the entire struggle as members of the 148 Reg. P. V. I. Mr. Fleming being wounded 4 times.

A STUDY IN LONGEVITY.

The Cowdrick Family Tree Affords Remarkable Evidence of Long Life.

The Cowdrick family of which Mrs. Hamilton Otto and Mrs. Al S. Garman are lineal descendants presents a fine study in longevity. In speaking of this family the Williamsport Sun says:

The borough of Salladasburg has long been noted among the towns of this section of the state for its large number of aged citizens. A compilation of the ages of the Cowdrick family, children of Isaac and Martha Cowdrick, deceased, adds to the list, and develops a most remarkable longevity. Mr. and Mrs. Cowdrick had seven children, of whom six are alive. Their combined ages at the present time is 460 years, or an average of seventy-six years and eight months. The life partners of the seven children, six of whom are alive, are almost as old, the total being 446 years, or an average of seventy-six years and four months. The average age of the twelve approximates seventy-five years
